Gilded Balloon Productions
presents
Bill Bailey - Tinselworm

Well known for his razor-sharp wit and unforgettable sense of humour, self-proclaimed 'confused hippy' Bill Bailey is back. His solo show contains his trademark comedy with impulsive, post-modern rambles mixed in with shattering musical parodies.

This show was Bill's arena-filling tour of 2007... now trademark mix of travellers tales, musical invention and flights of fancy... the colliding of subject matter with absurdity, which makes Bill, the 'Jedi Knight of juxtaposition' (Evening Standard). He waxes lyrical on subjects as diverse as CERN, The Third Reich's economy minister, ASDA, the AA, conspiracy theories, the master of Emo, folk, mind-control doorbells you know, the usual stuff.

'As wonderful as anything he has ever done' The Times

'His turns of phrase are beautiful, even poetic in an Ogden Nash kind of way'
Manchester Evening News

'Smart, talented, and immensely likeable, the head of an intellectual and the heart of a punk... this is comedy verging on magic' The Scotsman
